Description :

Prsentation de l'diteur
At a time when historical-critical biblical research was beginning to exert its powerful influence on Scriptural studies, Bl. Newman wrote this pair of essays to present his personal views on what the Councils of Trent and Vatican I require all Catholics to believe about Scripture, and to define where there is room for Catholics to differ in their viewpoints. Faced with the problem of the apparently limited scope of inspiration to matters of faith and morals Newman shows how teachings on faith and morals pervade the whole of Scripture, accounting for historical statements and incidental remarks by the Bibles human writers. Newman's essays, which contributed to the theological grounding on which the teachings of Vatican II and the modern Magisterium stand, are essential reading for anyone seeking a deeper understanding of the Scriptural doctrine of the Church, and to engage faithfully and fruitfully with modern methods of Biblical criticism.
